

its argue time

Good morning, everyone. My name is [REDACTED]. The topic for discussion today is whether school uniforms should be mandatory.

I define the topic as whether school uniforms, the unique clothes assigned to children in some schools, should be required by rule. I, a part of the affirmative team, strongly believe that this statement is true.

Today as the _____ speaker, I will be talking about how school uniforms benefit children in the school and why the dispensation of this rule will disbenefit the school's learning environment. I am going to discuss 7 points.

1. One of the best ways to get students engaged with their school is to have them wear their crest day in and out. By getting everyone to wear the same set of clothes, schools can encourage a sense of unity, so that all students understand they are part of a common whole.
2. Uniforms give a sense of confidence to the students as it helps in having a higher opinion about themselves. Students can identify themselves as the students from a good school which boosts their confidence even when they are representing their respective schools in competitions outside.
3. When all the fashion accessories are taken away from the students and they are made to wear the same school uniform, it completely removes the distraction from the students and they can concentrate more on studies rather than their showing off and comparing their respective uniforms.
4. As students grow in age and body, their old clothes do not fit anymore and if they study in a school where they have to wear a uniform, the tight uniforms can be given to younger and poor students that will help them to save a lot of money every year. yes, this is a thing.
5. When no fashion accessories and fancy clothes are allowed in the school, students are less likely to break disciplinary rules. The school uniform providers design uniforms which are elegant which is why all the students look decent.
6. Uniforms give identity to students which is the reason no student can roam around in the streets during school hours as they would be easily recognisable. this is actually really smart
7. School uniforms are a lot cheaper as compared to branded clothes which is the reason it saves a lot of money for the parents.
